

The American Chamber of Commerce in Jordan

Raghad Alkhozah

AmCham-Jordan's Deputy CEO & Head of Business Development

Raghad Alkhozah is the Business Development Manager and Acting CEO at the American Chamber of Commerce in Jordan. She has had a lucrative and illustrious career in various corporate, international, and governmental bodies.

Early in her career, Ms. Alkhozah was the program manager International Federation of Red Cross and RCS in Geneva and Iraq, going on to become deputy general secretary of the Jordan Red Crescent Society.

She also served as a Chief Executive Officer of the Garment design and Training Services Centre in Jordan, and the Chief Executive Officer of the Jordan Garment Exporters Association. Ms. Alkhozah then took on the role of project consultant at the European Union, then CEDAW training consultant for International Women's Rights Action Watch, and a training consultant for the United Nations Development Project.

Raghad also served as a member of the Innovation and Research Incubators Center (Steering Committee) and the Jordan Chamber of Commerce in Agadir Agreement, representing the private sector.

Although Ms. Alkhozah has a Bachelors's degree in Veterinary Medicine and Surgery, she had a fruitful and successful career not dictated by her educational background. The position of Business Development Manager at the American Chamber of Commerce in Jordan requires a specific set of skills, such as experience in the U.S. Market, in export readiness assessment, trade promotion, a trade mission to the U.S., organizing and participation in exhibitions and raising awareness about the Jordan U.S. FTA and export procedure, making this position tailor-made for Ms. Alkhozah with her vast knowledge and broad and diverse experiences.
